

“Don’t imitate the fly before you have wings”

Good morning everyone present; I Mohd. Rehan of class 6-A, stand here to speak on a very interesting topic, “Don’t imitate the fly before you have wings”.

Well this expression means we should not fly to imitate any successful person without having the mastery and skills of that person. If we do, we may end up feeling disappointment.

For example, if in a gathering you get an opportunity to sing, but you don’t know the singing, you will cut a sorry figure in front of others. Similarly, if you don’t know how to bat and claim you can bat well, you may again disappoint yourself and others by your poor performance.

So the best thing is to develop wings before flying. That is, develop particular skills before putting them on display. You will gain Name, Fame and Success.

-----Thank You-----
